

ABSTRACT

A method establishes two redundant Switched Virtual Channel (SVC) connections through ATM Networks using the same ATM End System Address (AESAs) from a source ATM End Point to a destination ATM End Point. The method provides end-to-end path protection without relying on any underlying resiliency features of an ATM Network so that the set-up model is transparent to the underlying ATM Network.